Explanations:

1. The corporation should also report holdings in other securities, including non-listed other securities.
2. If the interested party holds more than one type of the corporation's securities, the corporation should note in a single line the holding rate (including on a fully diluted basis) taking into account all securities held by that interested party.
3. In this form, the corporation should list the status of holdings of all interested parties, including those whose holdings did not change.
4. In the event that the interested party is an investee whose activity is material to that of the corporation, the holdings should be split into shares purchased prior to the coming into effect of the Companies Law, 1999, conferring rights in capital and voting rights and shares purchased after the coming into effect of that law which are treasury shares.
5. If the interested party is a corporation, one should also note the first name/s of the individual/s who are the sole ultimate controlling shareholder/s of that corporation. If the interested party does not have a controlling shareholder – the details of its interested parties shall be listed.
6. If a senior officer holds five percent or more of the corporation's issued share capital or voting rights, the corporation should list his/her holdings in the "interested parties" holdings table as set out in Section a above.
7. If the interested party or senior officer also holds securities of its investee whose activity is material to that of the corporation, details of those holdings shall be included in the "comments" field as part of the holder's details.
